.... 1 00 LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO CLUBS. Vance and Settle at Rutherfordton. [From Charlotte Observer.] On Monday we left with a party from Cleaveland Springs to be present at the first meeting of the two standard-bearers of the two political parties of the State, which was to take place at Rutherfordton the next day. We saw plainly from incidents along the way that an immense crowd, such as Rutherfordton probably had never seen before would be present. Our carriage was peered into at nearly every house by curious persons, looking in vain for the familiar face of Vance. We passed a wagoner on a long hill who called to know if we were going to see "Zebedee," and on being answered in the affirmative, he winked significantly and gave three cheers. We verily believe that nearly every man in the mountains thinks that half of "Zebebee" belongs to him, and that he is secured by a mortgage that cannot be taken from him. We could not help from marking the contrast in greeting given the two speakers upon their arrival in the town. Vance came by way of Spartanburg, accompanied by the band of that place and several admirers and leading men of the mountain country, while Settle rode in a buggy, and the time of his coming was unknown. From sun up until noon, the people came pouring in by couples and squads. Every vehicle from an ox cart to a carriage bore the old farmers who were anxious to see old Zeb, and shake him by the hand once more .-A delegation about forty strong moved in from Shelby, and stopping in front of the Erwin House, at which Vance was staying, gave him three loud cheers, and moved on. In the mean time, a perfect throng besieged the hotel until the band wagon, drawn by four chesnut sorrels, with Vance plumes upon their heads, led the way to the grounds. Gov. Vance was introduced to the audience by G. M. Whitesides, Chairman of the County Democratic Executive Committee, and on arising said in substance: When comparatively a young and unknown man, he had sought the suffrages of this people to send him to Congress, they had responded heartily, and he was triumphantly elected .-Eighteen years had elapsed since then, fraught with many vicissitudes and changes, together otherwise restored to citizenship. He had upon him. They were afraid to fight him a fair ic faith throughout our common country. The appear before them for the Chief Magistracy of the State. Superstitions.

The moon is thought, by old wives, to influence the life of a child. Thus, the child born on the first day of the new moon is unfortunate in all its undertakings, and will live long; one one born on the sixth will live long; one born on the seventh will have a life of trouble; one born on the ninth will be rich; one born on the tenth will be a great traveler; one born on the eleventh will be devoted to religion; one born on the sixteenth will be grateful but unfortu- the growing crop of tobacco. A babe that cries at its christening will live long; if you bathe it on Sunday it will be sorrow free; if on Wednesday, it will grow beautiful: if on Thursday, it will grow fat; if on Friday, all its sins will be forgiven; if on Saturday, it will be unhealthy.

There are certain other superstitions applying to older people: if you cut your nails on Sunday it provokes Monsieur le Diable to such a degree that he'll shave you all the week and lead you into mischief. If you clip your hair at the new moon, it will grow long at the full; as the moon wanes your hair will fall out. Every one, silently or openly, is a little suspicious regarding Friday, yet few could give a reason.

Fifty-Three Boat-Loads of Wives.

That there is but one step from the sublime to the ridiculous is shown by the full accounts of the recent revolution in Turkey. Abdul Aziz, the Sultan, who had an immense accumulation of gold coin, variously estimated at from forty to one hundred million dollars, refused to advance even a small sum to pay his soldiers and civil officers anything on account of salary that was due to them. But to guard against an evil result, he ordered his nephew, the heir predays afterwards, at midnight, the ministry waited on the Sultan, announced that his reign had ended, and opening the dungeon door of during the war could control the Government Prince Murad, next in succession, hailed him as sovereign. The telegram which announced these changes said that the deposed Sultan "accompanied by fifty-three boats full of women, was conveyed away." Fancy fifty-three boats full of wives! The Tobacco Crop.

A Summary View of the Condition of the Growing Crop Throughout the Union-Prospective Prices.

We have received the annexed circular, which gives information of interest and value to our tobacco planters and dealers:

HOPKINSVILLE, Kr., July 18 .- For the benefit of all persons interested in tobacco, either as buyer or seller, I give all the most reliable information I have been able to gather relative to myself to the territory which grows skipping grades of tobacco. Of the cutting districts of

The Clarkesville district, comprising the counties of Caldwell, Trigg, Christian, Todd, and Logan; Kentucky and Robertson, Montgomery and Stewart counties, Tennessee, there cannot possibly be over one-fourth of a crop, and I believe even less.

The Paducah district, including West Tennessee, the crop will not exceed one-half.

The Ohio river counties from Cumberland river to Louisville, that once promised an average crop, cannot now make over two-thirds of a crop, and some think less, the crop being much damaged by heavy rains.

The Green river counties have been much damaged by wet weather, and one-half a crop

The upper Cumberland district of both Kentucky and Tennessee, there cannot be over onethird of a crop; most estimates place it at less.

The central counties of Kentucky, which produce a grade of tobacco approximating the "Clarksville type, including Hart, Hardin, La Rue, Warren, Barren, Green, Taylor and other counties, will not exceed one-half a crop; I rather think less.

The crops of Illinois and Indiana have been much injured by excessive rains, drowning out much in lowlands, causing it to french. I think it would be a full estimate to put the two States down at two-thirds of a crop.

Missouri, the only State that has claim to a full crop, is now making serious complaint of much damage from floods and excessive hot sun, and the tobacco set in all directions has started off very indifferently. This is complained of from every State that grows the Virginia and North Carolina will not make one-half a crop, and much of it late.

So, taking a careful survey of all the tobacco portion of the United States, one must come to the conclusion that there cannot possibly, under any circumstances, be one-half a crop made, as the greatest failure in those sections that grow the largest quantities.

The crop in this section of last season has nearly all been marketed, not over 10 per cent. now in the hands of the planters, and the farmers have realized fine prices, which should be satisfactory to them. They must remember there is a point beyond which consumption will not take tobacco, and that speculation has frequently pushed it to the point which checks the consumption of "American tobacco" and increases that of substitutes. So my advice would be to those holding tobacco to accept full prices and fair profits on their stocks. While I advise this, I must also say that good tobacco of decid-The last speaker was Hon. GENERAL NEWS.

A HUMAN BRUTE.-A man named John Connolly, recently died at St. Clairsville, Pa., from the effects of a dog bite. Connolly was of brutish nature, and while in a saloon recent-, he seized the ear of an old hound which was leeping on the floor, shook it awhile and then et the animal drop by biting the ear off. The log ran howling and bleeding out of the room. Connolly chewed up the ear and spat it out on the floor with the remark. "I can chew up any log in this town just like that." went into a saloon kept by one Fogarty, who owned a full-blooded English bull-dog, which dozed under the table. Connolly got on his hands and knees and crawled under the table, seized one of the dog's cars in his teeth, and dragged the animal out into the centre of the The dog tried to get away, but Connolly held tight, and rising to his feet shook the dog until its weight tore the ear off. The bulldog, thoroughly aroused, made a savage dash for his assailant. Connolly dropped on all fours and knocked the dog away with his fist. The dog rushed at him again and caught him Connolly could choke it loose. There were two men in the place besides Fogarty, and they orable conduct in promoting that vital reform made a move to interfere. Fogarty exclaimed will probably cost him votes in the city of New "Let him alone! The man's to blame, and I hope the dog will kill him." At length Fogarty drew his pistol, and remarking that it was a shame to have to save the life of the worst brute of the two by taking that of the least, he placed it against the dog's side, and shot it through the heart. Even then they had

> One of the largest sales of dry goods that ever took place in New York was begun on Wednes-day at Messrs. Faulkner, Page & Co's. The goods were from many leading mills in the cheviots, denims, &c. Some thirteen thousand packages were offered at an aggregate value of fully $2,500,004. The salesroom was thronged with buyers from all parts of the country. The prices obtained were about twenty per centum below regular market prices, and about twentyfive per centum below manufacturers' co prices. They will be duplicated at once, it is said, by every dry goods commission house in New York.

I. We fling our banner proudly forth, Inscribed with honored names and pure The East, the West, the South, the North Will strive to make their triumph sure. Our people have been cursed too long With foul misrule and unjust laws, They're moving to redress the wrong, They're moving to uphold their cause. CHORUS.

The patriots now are gath'ring fast, In every State they soon will swarm; And soon we'll hear the welcome blast Ring out for Tilden and Reform.

·Corruption reigns on every hand, The rogues ne'er feel the halter draw, But plunder our impoverished land In name of liberty and law. The thieves are to the White House traced, See Babcock, Belknap and the rest, Our name at home, abroad, disgraced,

And patriots blush, amazed, distress'd.

But now the hosts are gath'ring fast, In every State they soon will swarm; And soon we'll hear the welcome blast Ring out for Tilden and Reform.

CHORUS.

III. Our leader is as bold a knight As ever lifted lance or shield; He'll guide us safely thro' the fight, And drive the rascals from the field. He's honest and he's faithful, too, He'll smash the Rings where'er they're found: He'll hold them to the public view Disgraced, dishonored and disown'd. CHORUS.

For now the hosts are gath'ring fast, In every State they soon will swarm; And soon we'll hear the welcome blast, Ring out for Tilden and Reform.

To aid our chief the noble West Lends to our cause her brightest star; Her Hendricks, noblest, purest, best, Stands by our Tilden in this war-This war against unblushing wrong, This war against the people's foes, This war against the robber throng, This war to stop the nation's woes. CHORUS.

For now the hosts are gath'ring fast, In every State they soon will swarm; And soon we'll hear the welcome blast, For Tilden Hendricks and Reform.

Then let our Banner wave on high, Its motto streaming to the breeze, We feel, now, that our triumph's nigh, The fight we'll win-the vie'try seize. The people in their strength will rise, And save the land from plunder more; Their shouts of joy will rend the skies And echo back from shore to shore.

CHORUS. For now the hosts are gath'ring fast, In every State they soon will swarm; And soon we'll hear the welcome blast, For Tilden, Hendricks and Reform.

Then let each patriot join our band, And work for honest men and true,

For Tilden and for Hendricks stand. And strive for Vance and Jarvis, too. And when November's sun goes down, As surely as our cause is just, We'll hear the shout of triumph borne CHORUS.

For now the hosts are gath'ring fast, In every State they soon will swarm; And soon we'll hear the welcome blast, For Tilden, Hendricks and Reform.

Photographs of Sorrow in Texas. San Antonia Herald says: A few mornings ago a young lady came into Bingham's photograph gallery. "I would have come before, she explained, "but there has been sickness in the family; grandma died this morning and this is the first chance I have had to have my picture taken since we came to town. I thought I would step over and look at the style of pictures and price them, while they are laying her out." Here the poor creature broke down, covered her face with-a handkerchief and sobbed convulsively.

"What does that size picture cost?" she added, pointing in mute agony to a photograph as big as a soup plate, on the wall.

Bingham dashed his hand quickly across his eyes, and said huskily: "In the midst of life we are in death-that size is $10, without the frame." And he sighed heavily.

"If you knew what I have gone through you wouldn't say $10 so coldly. That's just what the coffin comes to," and she gazed at the $10 picture with swimming eyes.

"Perhaps you had better come after the funeral is over, when you feel better," remarked Bingham, feeling uncomfortable himself.

After inquiring how much it would cost to take the whole funeral procession with her in the front carriage, alongside the preacher, and saying she was going to find out the price at the other photographic galleries first, she pressed her handkerchief to her face and took her departure.
